For Col. Mitchell Freedom
Savage Evolution
Electricity's Babyhood
Why Rome Fell

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company)

COLONEL MITCHELL RESIGNS, leaves the army, and will do good work in private life. He can be trusted to remind this country, emphatically, that it needs flying machines.

President Coolidge made friends by restoring Mitchell to half pay, with all of his extra allowances, modifying the court-martial decision to that extent.

He could not, because of the effect on army discipline, reverse the unpopular decision, completely.

SOME AFRICAN SAVAGES believe that gorillas and chimpanzees can talk, but hide their knowledge, lest they be put to work.

Other savages have an evolution theory of their own. The Batagni, Congo natives, tell the Rev. H. C. Graham that monkeys are descended from men that have been disgraced.

"We are better and prouder than the apes," say those practical black men, "therefore we eat them."

SAMUEL INSULL tells the world that electricity is only beginning its work. We are a little way, but not far, from the savage that fell down and worshipped an unknown malignant devil when the lightning flashed.

Railroads will soon change from steam to electric power and that will call for twenty-four billion more hours of kilowatt energy, says Mr. Insull. Farms will be "wired" for electric light and power.

MOST ENCOURAGING is the prediction of Elmer Schlessinger, Louis Levy's intellectual and dashing young law partner. Elmer Schlessinger says electricity, in this century, will do for the world's troubles and debts what steam did for the world in the last century. After Waterloo, Europe and the nations were called "hopelessly" bankrupt. In proportion, their debts were greater than they are today. Steam came and debts were paid with the greatest ease. Instead of bankruptcy, Europe knew prosperity such as no one dreamed of. It was so great that nations could not resist fighting over. What steam did for the last century electricity will do for this. And that is no dream.

"POLYGAMY is legalized and getting a divorce is as easy as bootlegging," says Mr. Hackenburg of New York's Legislature and he wants easy divorces from Paris, or Reno, made illegal.

Divorce and bootlegging, now so easy, simply prove that when you try to regulate human nature you invite trouble. "The cat will mew and dog will have his day."

WHY DID ROME FALL? Hala Frisbe of the Continental Casualty Company in Chicago wants to know. He thinks "some of our social and governmental problems are similar to those that troubled the old Romans."

Read Gibbon, and all the other historians, and you won't have any definite answer. It is like asking "Why did Methuselah finally die?" Nations rise, decline and die.

DEBAUCHERY had something to do with the fall of Rome. It weakened the upper classes and killed them off. Malaria weakened all the people.

THE EFFORT of Rome to rule creation, pouring the wealth of the world into Rome, subsidizing Roman mob idleness, had something to do with the downfall.

Prudhomme's statement, "Republics are ruined by wealth, monarchies by poverty," applies to Rome, both ways.

The Romans made a fine art

GALE WRECKS REVERE WIRES, LIGHT, HEAT, TRAFFIC PARALYZED

Five persons are in hospitals, suffering from injuries, and a mile of telegraph poles and wires were torn down in Winthrop avenue, Revere, as the result of a snow squall and fifty-mile gale that roared out of the northeast today, damaging property as it swept over Greater Boston.

The injured are:

PRINCE TOSSED AGAIN; COLLAR BONE BROKEN

Leicester, Eng., Jan. 28 (A.P.)—The Prince of Wales suffered a fractured collarbone when he was thrown from his horse today while hunting with the Fernie hounds.

The accident occurred at Little Shelton this afternoon. The Prince fell on his left shoulder, breaking the collarbone on that side. He is returning to London for medical attention.

The Prince stood the effects of his accident well, as was indicated by

THOUSANDS DELAYED IN 4-HOUR 'L' RUSH JAM

Elevated and Washington tunnel service was all stuffed up for nearly four hours today, the four hours taking in the busiest period of the earlier day.

Power trouble in the Sullivan square yards, where rails were grounded, made impossible the shifting of train cars and the reserve rolling stock, kept for the rush hours, was thoroughly impounded until the ground was broken.

Meanwhile, from 5 o'clock until nearly 9, only three and four-car trains were being run, instead of the usual five and seven-car trains, creating a passenger jam and slow service along the entire route from Sullivan square to Forest Hills and vice versa.

Hundreds of passengers, unable to wiggle their way into the abbreviated trains that were running many more minutes apart than usual, had their numbers augmented by hundreds more as the rush reached its apex, and every elevated and subway station was choked.

Many of the unfortunate passengers elected to wend their way to work via street trolleys and others obtained "lifts" in automobiles when tired of waiting at elevated stands.

WIFE CRIMSON SAMSON LOSES

Mrs. Hallie Elkins Davis Percy, Washington and West Virginia belle, who has filed suit against George Almy Percy of Boston, Harvard "strong man" and perfect specimen, for divorce. She seeks custody of George Almy Percy, Jr., shown here, too.

George Almy Percy of Boston, Harvard's strong man and hockey star of a few year sago, is to be divorced.

Today, in Paris, the mecca of those seeking the cutting of the marital knot, Mrs. Percy, who was Hallie Elkins Davis, granddaughter of former Senator Davis of West Virginia, filed her petition.

She also seeks the custody of their six-year-old child.

The couple were married in 1918 in a brilliant society wedding attended by notables of the country. Even those closest to the pair thought they were living happily, and the news of Mrs. Percy's action came as something of a social bombshell in Boston and Washington.

Though Percy had achieved fame as strong man, athlete and marshal of his class at Harvard, it was as a marine that Miss Davis, then a popular debutante, first knew the Boston boy.

During the war Percy enlisted in the marine corps and received his first tutelage as a soldier-sailor at

TRUCKMAN TELLS HOW HE GOT 'PRIVILEGE' TO MANUFACTURE BOOZE

Testimony that he paid $100 a week for the privilege of making moonshine in Chelsea was given in Federal Court today by Joseph Alpert, Chelsea truckman.

Alpert said he paid the money to "Eddie" Carlon, whom the government claims was a collector for Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, on trial with twenty-eight other defendants for alleged participation in a rum conspiracy.

The truckman resumed his revelations of the activities of the Chelsea rum ring before a crowd that filled every seat in the courtroom and choked the corridors.

Alpert was permitted to resume his story after an ineffectual objection was made by Attorney John P. Feeney.

Attorney Feeney contended that the truckman's testimony was outside the statute of limitations, inasmuch as the particular overt act in which it was alleged he was involved, occurred after the alleged conspiracy period.

District Attorney Harold D. Williams declared the conspiracy did not terminate until some months after the alleged overt act, and Judge Brewster overruled Feeney's motion.

EXCEPTIONS ARE TAKEN.

Attorney Feeney took exceptions in behalf of all the defendants, and Assistant District Attorney Hubert Thompson then questioned the witness as follows:

Alpert was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Thompson as follows:

Q.—Do you have any memory when Mr. Carlon called upon you, that he mentioned from whom he came? (Objection by Attorney Feeney.)

U. S. LINER RESCUES 25 FROM SINKING SHIP

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—The four days' heroic struggle of the United States liner President Roosevelt to rescue the crew of the stricken British freighter Antinoe in mid-Atlantic has ended in triumph.

At midnight, under a bright moon, thirteen remaining members of the crew of twenty-five were rescued from the wallowing freighter when doom seemed imminent.

Twelve men had been rescued previously after the President Roosevelt had stood by the freighter for more than 72 hours in one of the most savage storms ever encountered in the Atlantic.

Although the storm had been cheated of the crew of the Antinoe, it took a toll of 24 lives when the British freighter Laristan foundered off Halifax after the North

Washington, Jan. 28.—Widespread demands by the Bell Telephone Company monopoly for ever higher rates, alleged to be necessary because of inadequate earnings, suffered a blow today when a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission showed a gain of nearly 25 per cent. in telephone operating income for eleven months of 1925.

the fact that he telephoned to his private secretary and made light of his hurt. It is not believed he will have to stay in a hospital.

It is recalled that he broke his right collarbone in a similar fall in 1924 and made a speedy recovery.

The Prince of Wales' fall today was the second in two days, as he was thrown yesterday at Melton Mowbray when his horse fell dead under him.

It makes his fifteenth riding accident since the Autumn of 1920. On one previous occasion, near Leighton Buzzard, in February, 1924, he suffered a broken collarbone while training a hunter.

During his last visit to the United States the prince was asked about his numerous falls. His reply was:

"I never fall off horses. In the twelve years that I have been riding—in hunts, races and polo—I have never fallen from a horse. Every time I have had a tumble it has been the horse and went down. I have never fallen while the horse was standing.

HIS TUMBLE RECORD.

The Prince's accidents while riding in the last five years were:

When.	Where.	How.
Nov., 1920	Norfolk	Hunt
Dec., 1920	Grafton	Hunt.
March, 1921	Sanbury	Race
June, 1921	Aldershot	Polo
Nov., 1922	Malmesbury	Drag
Dec., 1922	Oxford	Race
Feb., 1923		Hunt
March, 1923	Larkhill	Race
March, 1923	Reading	Race
Feb., 1924	Leighton Buzzard	P'ct'ce
March, 1924	Workingham	Race
Sept. 1924	Meadow Brook	Polo
Oct., 1924	Toronto	Hunt
Jan., 1926	Melton Mow	Hunt
Jan., 1926	Little Shelton	Hunt

The prince's injuries, other than bruises, have been a sprained ankle, a hurt knee, a broken collar bone, a slight concussion of the brain and a cut over one eye, and then, today, a broken collar bone.

The frequency of the Prince's accidents has been the subject of considerable anxiety and public discussion in England, where there is a strong feeling that the heir to the throne should not be so disregardful of his personal safety.

"HE NEVER FALLS."

Recently it was said in circles close to the royal family that during the latter part of 1925, while Queen Mother Alexandra was approaching her end, the Prince limited considerably his hunting activities so as not to give his grandmother cause of worry, but since the new year he has been as active as ever in riding and following the hounds.

On his last trip to America, in 1924, he was quoted as replying to a question as to why he was such an unlucky horseman: "I never fall off horses. In the twelve years I have been riding—in hunts, races and polo—I have never fallen from a horse. Every time I have had a tumble it has been the horse that went down. I have never fallen while the horse was standing."

Most of the Prince's riding accidents have occurred while hunting, although he has been thrown once whilep laying polo and several times during races. His accidents included a cut over the eye during at polo game at Meadowbrook, L. I., and a hunting fall near Toronto, both during his 1924 visit to America.

Little Shelton, where today's accident occurred, is in the Nottingham section, near Melton Mowbray, one of the Prince's hunting headquarters.

WOMAN CLERK GETS 14 MONTHS IN THEFT CASE

Worcester, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Gertrude C. She was arrested early in December while she was working as a bookkeeper for the M. Steinert & Son Company, music dealers. Her defense at the trial was that the shortage of money was a mistake. Prosecution evidence, however, showed the money disappeared at different times.

disclosures that will startle New England.

Not only is her rum expose the most sensational ever made in this part of the country, but what is more important it is the first confession ever made by a woman rum-runner.

The first chapter of her intriguing story will be published next Monday, February 1, in the Boston Evening American.

Mrs. Stone strikes from the shoulder. She doesn't mince words. She says the majority of her customers in Greater Boston are listed in the Blue Book.

She lays bare the graft in official circles and among the border patrols on both sides of the Canadian boundary. She gives an intimate account of her hair-breath escapes while at the wheel at all hours of the night, eluding armed patrols and at times actually dodging bullets.

She tells of the hazards, strain and pitfalls of one of the most desperate roles in the underworld of the present day and all about her intimate fears and impressions.

Her confession is an intensely human document. It has an appeal for young and old in all walks of life.

You cannot afford to miss a word of the stirring, rapidly-moving narrative of the New England stenographer who turned outlaw and earned such titles as the "Bobbed Bootlegger," the "Duchess of Alcohol," etc.

Don't forget the date—MONDAY for the FIRST CHAPTER of her confession, in the Boston Evening American.

Doctor Produces Working Model of Living Cell

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Dr. D. T. MacDougal of the Tucson, Ariz., laboratories for plant physiology has produced a chemical working model of a cell, unit of living matter.

The model, however, has no power of reproduction.

The artificial cell is capable of growing by absorption of chemicals until it reaches a certain point and then stops.

A living cell grows until it reaches a chemical balance, then automatically starts all over again, impelled by some motive power absent in the artificial cell.

CREW RESCUED FROM SINKING STEAMER

German Lloyd Liner Bremen had succeeded in rescuing six men.

Brilliant though their exploit had been, Captain George Fried and the crew of the President Roosevelt were grieved at the loss of two of their comrades who gave their lives Monday in a vain effort to carry succor to the Antinoe.

In a radio message to the Associated Press today Captain Fried said:

"Midnight—Received Blinker message from the Antinoe, 'We have 30 degree list.' Weather continued moderating, but heavy swell running, with some wind. Manned and launched sixth boat in command Miller, first officer. Proceeded alongside Antinoe and took off 12 remaining members of the crew.

"It was necessary for me to take advantage of a brief spell of good weather. A bright moonlight was of great assistance in the operations.

"Antinoe's crew very weak, and helpless, suffering from hunger, exposure and injuries. Last sight Antinoe still afloat and constituting serious menace to navigation."

Volunteer crews from the American vessel, both times under the command of First Officer Miller. dent Harding, a sister ship of the made the rescues.

Only two months ago the Presi-President Roosevelt, rescued 28 men from the Italian steamer Ignazio Florio. Captain Paul Grening of the President Harding was congratulated by President Coolidge and the Italian government for his exploit.

"All Well" Aboard Olympic; Distress Rumor Was False

The White Star liner Olympic was somewhat distressed today, but its distress was principally because it had been reported in distress when it was not in distress at all.

Throughout the night and past the dawn, the Tropical Radio Corporation operator in Boston sounded the Atlantic via the air following report by Major W. D. Dooley, in Columbus, Ind., that a radio message asking aid had been decoded by him as coming from the Olympic.

Today there came from Captain Marshall of the Olympic, the following radio message:

"Rumors false. Olympic, 12:30 Greenwich time, 135 miles west of Bishop Rock, Scillies. All well."

As a matter of fact, when the purported SOS was picked out of the air, the White Star liner had not had time even to clear the English Channel.

It is believed that Major Dooley, formerly an aviation officer, received a garbled report being radioed to Lloyd's of London by the Swedish ship Baltic, bound for Boston, which struck a rock leaving Sweden and was forced to return to port.

The Olympic's trip from Southampton to New York is her first since being overhauled.

MAN BURIED IN COLLAPSE

Trapped and buried when part of a wall in a building in Main street, Charlestown, collapsed today, Joseph Sowa, engaged with three others in wrecking an adjoining structure, was injured and narrowly escaped death.

Sowa, 40 years old, married and living at No. 77 Poplar street, is employed by the Building Wrecking Company of Woburn.

Fellow workmen dug him out and Sowa was rushed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where several stitches were taken in his scalp.

COOLIDGE AND WARREN CONFER ABOUT MEXICO

Washington, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Charles B. Warren of Detroit, former ambassador to Mexico and head of the American-Mexican commission that negotiated in 1923 the basis for the recognition of Mexico by the United States, has concluded a series of conferences with President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg relative to the diplomatic controversy over the new Mexican anti-alien land and petroleum acts.

The former ambassador and the State Department declined to reveal the nature of the conversations or the status of plans for dealing with the Mexican problem. Despite this silence there is every indication that further diplomatic correspondence is in prospect.

6,000 STRIKE IN WOOLEN MILLS; OPERATIONS STOP

Passaic, N. J., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Police today said that the number of employes of the Botany Consolidated Mills, on strike in demand for a return to former wage scales, had reached 6,000. Woolen mills at Passaic and Garfield were affected and operations in both were at a standstill. Seven hundred strikers paraded in front of the Gera Mills.

taken to Haymarket Relief Station.

Albert Dufour, No. 1 Blake street, North Cambridge, cut by falling glass in the same accident. He was also taken to the Relief Station.

Miss Margaret Genitrice, twenty, of Somerville avenue, Somerville, at City Hospital, suffering from a fractured right leg, fractured wrist and contusions. She was struck by a truck at Dover and Washington streets while blinded by the squall.

John M. McLaughlin, thirty-five, of No. 50 Hecla street, Dorchester, at City Hospital with scalp wounds and possible concussion of the brain. He was struck by a sky light torn loose by the wind, while walking through the yard of the Frost Coal Company, Neponset avenue.

Katherine M. Kennedy, forty-four, of No. 2137 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, at the City Hospital suffering from fractures of both arms and a fracture of the right leg. She slipped during the storm while taking in clothes from a line in the rear of her home.

TROLLEY CAR ESCAPES.

The gale struck Revere without warning. The twenty poles went down in a twinkling just as a trolley with twelve passengers left the path of destruction. All might have been electrocuted if the car had been caught in the tangled mass of wire reaching from Beachmont station to a point beyond North Shore road.

Many homes in Revere are heatless by the cutting off of electric power used as an auxiliary in oil-heaters.

The storm which struck Revere with such terrific force is believed to be the forerunner of a gale moving eastward from Quebec. Storm warnings were ordered displayed along the Atlantic coast from Eastport, Me., to Norfolk, Va.

TRAFFIC PARALZED.

Automobile, trolley and pedestrian traffic were tied up from Beachmont station to a point beyond North Shore road. Telephone and electric light service, and police and fire signals were thrown into a chaotic condition.

Approximately thirty-six trolleys were held in long lines without power to move, as the destructive sweep of the storm cut off the power. All trolley service in and out of Revere connecting with Boston, Lynn and Chelsea was totally paralyzed.

COLD WINDS ON WAY.

Emergency crews and police patrols were rushed to the scene of the wreckage. Police at a late hour had received no reports of any motorists or pedestrians being caught in the path of the storm's destruction in Revere.

Boston grew dark as the storm lowered, but it lasted for less than twenty minutes in the city proper. The snowfall was light.

Temperatures are falling all the way from the Middle West to New England, the weather man reports, and zero winds are due to reach Boston by morning.

A heavy snowstorm throughout Western Massachusetts was reported.

BELGIUM PAYS LAST HONORS TO MERCIER

Brussels, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—All Belgium bade her beloved Cardinal Mercier farewell today.

Within the austere Cathedral of St. Gudule, its contours hidden by billowing miles of crepe, all classes gathered to pay their last homage to the heroic divine whose voice, raised in defiance of the destroying German invaders, won the plaudits of a universe.

Contrary to her physician's advice, Queen Elizabeth left the palace and arrived at Saint Gudule's just as the requiem began. Dressed in heavy mourning she took her place in the pew with King Albert.

Following the formal ceremonies the body of Cardinal Mercier was left upon its catafalque in St. Gudule's Church in order that thousands of Belgians might file by and pay a final tribute.

BURIAL FRIDAY.

At 6 o'clock tonight the body will be returned to Malines where it will be buried tomorrow at 11 o'clock in the Archbishop's crypt in the Malines Cathedral. The ceremonies tomorrow will be private.

suffering an attack of the grip, all members of the royal household were present. Behind the King were the clergy, the high government officials, the diplomatic representatives of all nations and all Belgians from peasant to shopkeeper who could crowd into the edifice.

The body of the cardinal, in a simple casket, rested on an enormous catafalque surrounded by a triple row of huge candles. The interior of the casket was lined with purple velvet.

While 5,000 were seated within the cathedral, thousands more pressed against the outer doors. The ceremony within St. Gudule was short and severely simple. The requiem mass was chanted by a mixed sextet and the funeral oration was pronounced by Monsignor Evrad, dean of the cathedral.

The ceremonies of homage began today at Malines when the flower-weighted coffin left on a special train for Brussels. Upon the train were all the priests of the Malines archbishropric, carrying purple cushions, upon which were fastened Mercier's war decorations.

STREETS CROWD.

The station at Brussels was festooned with broad mourning bands and shrines were installed so it resembled a chapel. The body was met by the King personally, Prince Lopold, Cardinal Bourne of Westminister, Cardinal DuBois of Paris, Lord Halifax, representing the Anglican Church; Marshal Foch, the diplomatic corps and most of the high officials of Belgium.

After a few prayers at the station chapel the coffin was placed upon a gun carriage drawn by black blanketed horses. The King and the other personages fell into line and headed the procession. Shops, schools and banks were closed. The bells of the churches of Brussels tolled unceasingly.

The crowd on the streets was estimated at 125,000. A representative of the American Legion took part in the procession. The American ambassador gave a bouquet, accompanied with a note expressing the love borne Cardinal Mercier by the American people.

A commemorative prayer in behalf of Cardinal Mercier, the former Belgian prelate, was offered by Dr. P. T. Edrop, during the noon service in Emmanuel Church (Episcopal) Newbury street, today.

ADMITS HE GAVE WIFE NO MONEY IN YEARS

Dentist Asserts He Still Loves Her, Despite Guard She Placed Over Baby

Portland, Me., Jan. 28.—The Brookline, Mass., wife of Dr. Harold M. Shalit who is suing her mother-in-law for $250,000 alienation of affections, had him arrested three times for non-support, he testified today.

Dr. Shalit, young Portland dentist, was continuing his testimony in defending his mother, Mrs. Annie Shalit, sister of Hiram Abrams, movie magnate, in the suit.

One arrest, Dr. Shalit testified, was in Portland, one in Boston and one in Brookline, with the Boston arrest first.

In Boston and Brookline, he said, he was ordered to pay his wife, Mrs. Alice Whitt Shalit, $25 a week, but the Portland court jumped it to $7.50.

He was eighteen weeks behind in his payments then, he said, and he admitted that at present he is two weeks behind in the payments.

Although he has given his young wife no money voluntarily since Christmas, 1923, he testified that he still loved her and would take her back.

BARRED FROM HIS CHILD.

His love is despite what he alleges was her effort to keep him from seeing their year-old baby.

Not until last Sunday did he hire detectives to locate the child, he testified, although he had been unable to find the baby himself.

The child, Louis Bernard Shalit, now is being guarded at the home of his nurse, Mrs. Josephine Casey of No. 11 Ruggles street, Quincy.

Morris Wolf, former Boston police inspector, told on the witness stand earlier in the week of an attempt of Dr. Shalit to see his son at the Casey home.

"Shalit asked Mrs. Casey to see the baby," Wolf testified. "She refused." Then, according to Wolf, somebody held up a three months old baby in apparent effort to mock Shalit's wish.

NURSE GUARDING BABY.

Mrs. Casey said at her home today that she had admitted Dr. Shalit and a Boston detective to her home last Sunday. She refused the father permission to see the child, she said, because during the several months it has been at the Casey home he never before made an attempt to see it.

BACK BAY BUS IS FAVORED

Operation by the Boston Elevated of an experimental bus lines in the congested down-town area of the city appears certain as a result of a continued hearing today before the Public Utilities Commission.

Edward Dana, general manager of the road, told the commissioners that the trustees wanted to see if automobile owners can be induced to leave their cars in garages at Massachusetts avenue and use the busses from there to their offi[illegible]

The line would run from the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Newbury street, along Massachusetts avenue to Boylston street, through Boylston, Tremont and Bromfield streets to Washington street, returning via Boylston and Hereford and Newbury streets.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Lyons said Mayor Nichols would not oppose the experiment.

100 NEW MEMBERS FOR CHAMBER'S 505 DRIVE

The Boston Chamber of Commerce's 505 canvass for new members to take care of the normal turnover during the last year, due to removals from the city, etc., reports good progress though it has been underway only a week. The new members obtained are well in excess of 100, and this is considered good, as this is the first time the chamber has used the present method to obtain new members. Paul F. Clark heads the committee.

The next leg, from Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, to Fernando Noronha, Brazil, is 1,432 miles, the longest continuous flight of the journey.

AUTO BREAKS THROUGH ICE; GIRL DROWNS

Plymouth, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The body of Miss Edna Morton of Plymouth, who was drowned in Lond Pond last night when an automobile driven by Dr. E. A. Barrows, a physician of this town, broke through the ice, was recovered early today.

Dr. Barrows, who made several unsuccessful attempts to rescue his companion, was in a serious condition from exposure and shock.

Dr. Barrows was driving across the pond. Near a point where a creek flows in, the ice gave way. The driver and his companion were carried down in twelve feet of water, but Dr. Barrows extricated himself from the top of the car and dived several times trying to free Miss Morton.

When police arrived they found the lights of the automobile still burning under the water.

WESTERN BANKS WIN IN ASSET PROTEST

Washington, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—In the face of vigorous protests from western banks closely identified with the agricultural interests, the Federal Farm Loan Board has directed an annual 20 per cent. depreciation to be charged off of real estate acquired by the Federal joint land stock banks through foreclosures, it was announced today. Real estate acquired by any bank through foreclosure or by conveyance from borrowers in satisfaction of a mortgage will not be carried as an asset for an amount in excess of the principal of the original loan on such real estate, the order said.

MAN, CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR, IS DYING

One man is dying at the Haymarket Relief Station after being crushed in a freight elevator well in a down-town department store today, while another escaped death by inches.

Fred Corbett of Albion street, Somerville, and James Gallagher of No. 5 Pond terrace, Arlington, were at work in the elevator well laying wire. Suddenly the elevator, for some reason not yet determined, started up from the basement.

Gallagher saw the car ascending in time to leap through a door. He escaped with slight cuts about the head.

He cried out a warning to Corbett but it was too late for the latter to escape. He was carried to the top of the well, and his body was jammed against the roof.

Traffic Officer Joseph Snyder called the fire department, and the elevator was lowered and Corbett taken out. He was unconscious, and at the Haymarket station it was found that virtually all his ribs had been broken, his chest crushed in. Both legs were broken.

Girls in the store fainted as the mangled body was carried past them to the waiting ambulance.

City Superintendent of Elevators Timothy Farell started an investigation.

Physicians at the relief station held out little hope for Corbett's life. The two men had been working for Corbett's father, a contractor, and were not employed by the department store.

RHODE ISLAND DIVORCE LAWS UNDER FIRE

Easy divorces in Rhode Island will go by the board if revised marriage laws submitted by a marriage and divorce commission to Governor Pothier are passed by the General Assembly.

Providence, R. I., will no longer be the Reno of the East. What will smart society do then?

The facility with which marriage ties were cut in Providence was brought to public attention with the divorce of Lowell Sherman, movie star. The Sherman divorce came on the heels of the famous Pearl White divorce and the public began to take notice.

Crane Wilbur, noted screen star, also was granted a Providence divorce from his wife, Florence. He accused her of indiscretions at Long Beach, Calif. He gave a Providence address but the owner of the house testified that he had never been a resident there.

Minta Durfee Arbuckle got a divorce from her husband, Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle on the word of her attorney that her desertion was true. She gave her address as hotel Biltmore, Providence. A storm of protest broke when a divorce decree awarded to Nina Wilcox Putnam was vacated. She had sued for freedom from Robert J. Sanderson. An investigation of the "divorce mill" followed and attention of the entire country was focused on Rhode Island.

Neighbors are up in arms claiming that the dog is a dangerous animal and that several complaints against it have been made. Mildred is being cared for by her sister Mary.

TRUCKMAN TELLS OF PAYING $100 FOR RUM PROTECTION

ing to the defendant Carlon. A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Referring to that meeting with Carlon, where was it? A.—At my house.

BEGAN MAKING LIQUOR.

Q.—After that meeting with Carlon, what did you do with respect to the liquor business? A.—I started to make liquor.

Q.—How long after Carlon's visit? A.—I started between one and two weeks after.

Q.—What preparations did you make? A.—I bought a still.

Q.—What other things did you do? A.—I put up some mash. You've got to make the mash first to get the liquor.

Q.—When did you next see Carlon? A.—About three weeks later, at my house.

Q.—Were you making liquor then? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did Carlon say? A.—He came with another man and I gave him (the witness's answer was indistinct).

Q.—What day did he come? A.—Friday evening. I saw Carlon usually at my house on Friday evenings after that first visit.

SAYS HE PAID CARLON.

Q.—What did you do on these occasions? A.—I paid him.

Q.—How much? A.—$100.

Q.—When did he stop calling? A.—The last of March.

Q.—When did you next see Carlon? A.—I saw Carlon sometime in June.

Q.—What conversation did you have? A.—I asked him why he stopped me. He said someone told him that I was against the administration on election day. He said if I was a good boy and of good behavior he would let me make moonshine again. I paid him after that $100 a week.

MADE 400 GALLONS WEEKLY.

Q.—Where were you making the moonshine? A.—In the garage in back of my house at No. 56 Elm street.

A.—How much liquor were you making? Q.—Three or four hundred gallons a week.

At this point Assistant District Attorney Thompson [illegible] statements made by Alpert before the indictments were returned, with a view of refreshing Alpert's memory. The statements were made in June, 1923. Attorney Feeney objected. Judge [illegible] sustained Feeney, and the direct testimony of Alpert ended. Attorney Feeney then started cross-examination.

Q.—You knew that in 1923 they had no right to put you in court on the charge that you were in possession of liquor? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you know now that the law allowing city police to put citizens in court for possession of liquor wasn't passed until a year or two ago? A—Yes.

Q.—You know Mr. Stern, don't you? A.—I don't remember the name.

Attorney Feeney asked if Stern was in the courtroom. He is an internal revenue officer. Stern stood up.

FOUGHT AGAINST MAYOR.

Q.—That's the man who put you into court, isn't it? A.—(Inaudible.)

Q.—Do you know that a Chelsea officer went with this man, Mr. Stern, and took your still? A.—Yes.

Q.—You told here that Eddie Carlon said to you that you couldn't do any more business because you fought the Mayor? A.—Yes.

Q.—It is a fact that you fought the Mayor, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—The Mayor always fought you and your son, also, isn't that so? A.—Yes.

Q.—In May, 1921, the Mayor spoke against you and your son from the platform and called you a moonshiner, didn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—He said things you and your son didn't like? A.—Yes?

Q.—You didn't like it when he called you a moonshiner, did you? A.—Of course not.

Q.—You called him names while he was speaking, didn't you? A.—No.

Q.—You blamed him for licking your son when your son ran for alderman in Chelsea? A.—I don't know about that.

GRILLED BY FEENEY.

Q.—Do you recall saying something about losing your citizenship if you didn't come here to the trial? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—You told your son [illegible] lose your citizenship unless you came here and testified? A.—Yes, if I was convicted.

Q.—What were you afraid you'd be convicted of? (Objection.)

Sought Permit

Joseph Alpert, government witness in the alleged Chelsea rum ring union trial. He alleges he asked Mayor Quigley's permission to make liquor.

Q.—When did you meet the Mayor? A.—In 1922.

Q.—When were you raided by the Federal officers? A.—1923.

Q.—Wasn't it 1922? A.—It might have been.

Attorney Feeney, pointing to two men at the counsel table, said:

Q.—You know these two gentlemen here? (They were Federal Agents Katz and Goldman.) Stand up. (The agents stood up.) Did you see these two men in the district attorney's office when you came over here? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Williams, the district attorney? A.—No.

Q.—Did you talk with these two men when you came over here? A.—I talked with Mr. Stone. (Assistant District Attorney Elihu Stone.)

NOT SURE OF CARLON.

Q.—Did they tell you that you would lose your citizenship if you were convicted? A.—No.

The witness then said he came to the district attorney's office last Summer in response to a request in a letter from Assistant District Attorney Stone.

Q.—You know Mr. Carlon, don't you? Mr. Carlon, stand up. (The defendant Eddie Carlon stood up.) That's him, isn't it? That's the man you testified here you paid money to, isn't it? A.—My sight isn't very good, I don't know.

Q.—Mr. Carlon, come right up here to the railing and let the witness get a better look at you. Is that the man? A.—Well, I don't know. It looks something like him.

Q.—Is this man the man you testified you paid money for protection? As a matter of fact you are not sure at all, are you? A.—No, I am not sure. It looks like him.

VISITOR WAS YOUNG MAN.

Q.—In your direct testimony you said the man who first came to see you after your talk with the Mayor was a man about 25 years of age? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't say anything about the man having gray hair, did you? A.—No. (Carlon, who stood up, was apparently verging on middle age, with gray running through his hair.)

Attorney Feeney then called up Leo Leonard, another defendant.

Q.—Whether or not this is the man you imagined you paid the money to? A.—No.

Following an argument over the possession of moonshine making equipment, Attorney Feeney was allowed to cross-examine Alpert on it.

—Mr. Alpert, on April 24, 1923, did you appear in this court and plead guilty to a charge of having in your possession about 9,440 gallons of mash and two large coil gas stoves? A.—Yes.

Q.—You appeared before Judge Morton, didn't you? A.—I think so.

Q.—How about this man Carlon? How many times did you see him? A.—About ten times.

Q.—Why did Carlon tell you to stop making liquor? A.—I don't remember the exact conversation.

ERECTE DHIGH FENCE.

Q.—When did you see the Mayor for the last time with regard to this business of yours? A.—In June.

Q.—What did you ask him about? A.—I asked him why Carlon stopped me from making whiskey?

Q.—And he told you to get out of the office and stay out, didn't he? A.—Yes.

At this point there was a clash between Attorney Feeney and Assistant District Attorney Thompson over the line of questioning. Feeney said Thompson was a good fellow but he put words "into their mouths during direct examination.

Q.—About the time you started this business there was a high fence around your house, wasn't there? You erected a fence ten feet high around your house, didn't you? A fence with two gates in it which was kept locked at night? A.—Yes.

Q.—Your son knew you were doing this moonshine business, didn't he? A.—No.

Q.—You never gave your son money to pay Carlon? A.—Yes, once.

Q.—Then he knew all about the moonshine business, didn't he? A.—No, he didn't know what the money was for.

Q.—You gave your son $100 on one occasion, didn't you, to give to Carlon. A.—Yes.

Q.—Your son was admitted to the bar in 1921 before Quigley was mayor? A.—I didn't think so.

TELLS OF SEEING MAYOR.

Q.—In regard to this $100 payment to Carlon, you mean to say you never told him what it was for? A.—I don't know whether he knew what it was for or not.

Q.—You saw this man Carlon ten times, and yet when he stood before you a short time ago you weren't sure at all who the man was? A.—I think it was him.

Q.—You never saw the mayor again after July, 1922, in regard to this business? A.—No, never.

Q.—What conversation took place when you saw the mayor in the store the second time? A.—I asked him if I could make a little whiskey, and the mayor said he didn't know.

Q.—Did he say anything else? A.—He said he'd send a young man to see me.

Q.—Did he mention Carlon's name? A.—No.

Q.—What conviction was it you were afraid might result in loss of your citizenship? A.—I don't know that I ever said that.

Q.—You never said so at any time? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Now Mr. Alpert, isn't it a fact that sometime when you had difficulties with the mayor that you said if they raided you and shut you up that you said: 'I'll have everybody else shut up.' A.—Yes.

Q.—Who told you how to make moonshine? A.—I don't know. (smilingly.)

Q.—You're not holding out on me? A.—(Drowned by laughter.)

Q.—Who did you sell your moonshine to? A.—Lots of people.

Q.—You're joking with me now, are you. You realize you are under oath? A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—Now tell me who you sold this stuff to. A.—Oh, I sold so much—

Attorney Scharton, for one of the defendants, interpolated the answer to mean that he sold to merchants.

Q.—Yes, probably to a lot of lawyers and bankers, too.

"Not that kind of stuff to any lawyers," answered Attorney Scharton rejoined.

Q.—You're not trying to protect your friends, are you? A.—I'm protecting nobody.

Q.Now, Joe, who did you sell to? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Well, Joe, I guess that's all.

On redirect examination by Assistant District Attorney Thompson the witness testified he stopped making liquor after the first raid, in April.

Re-cross examination by Attorney Feeney:

Q.—You testified you made some payments to Carlon, that you saw him four times between the first and second raids? A.—Yes.

The 6-Tube Set Is Admittedly The Set of the Future---Why?

Many manufacturers have tried to make 6-tube sets, because admittedly a 6-tube set is more powerful than sets of fewer tubes, if properly built—BUT—the moment that you increase signal strength, you also increase the unwanted reception of extraneous noises, electrical disturbances and stray pick-ups of the ordinary air core radio transformers. Therefore the secret of building a 6-tube set lies in the shielding of the radio frequency circuit, and in the quality of the audio frequency circuit.

These two features are described elsewhere in this advertisement, and you will see why this set so far excels other 6-tube receiving sets. No expense has been spared—the world's greatest radio engineers have perfected it to its present flawless superiority.

This New 6-Tube Set Will Be a Sensation! We Bought the First 2000 Shipped. Act Now!

The manufacturer's letter, reproduced elsewhere in this announcement, tells the story. We sold so many thousands of the 5-tube Grimes Sets that he offered us the privilege of introducing the new 6-tube set AT A SPECIAL PRICE for an introductory sale—the regular price to go into effect after this sale was over.

(The price will be $125 for the set alone—the accessories with which we have equipped these sets would make the price $185.00.)

The opportunity is extraordinary—we expect to sell the 2000 sets in a few days, and then subsequent shipments will have to be sold at their regular price. Get your set now—at almost half-price, while this introductory event is on!

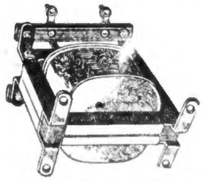
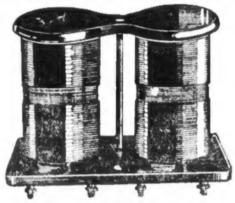
New Features of This Super Radio Set
that contribute to flawless reception



Illustrations One-Half Actual Size

Three of These Extra Size Audio Frequency Transformers

These transformers give tone and power to the set. They are almost twice the size of ordinary transformers, and the heavy layers of iron, and extremely large core show that this manufacturer has spared no expense in building the best set he knew how. Each transformer weighs almost a pound and a quarter. The audio transformer gives the signal its tone "electrically" and passes it on to the speaker in all its silvery, crystal purity, and the cone speaker preserves the purity of the tone and passes it on acoustically perfect to the ear in the upper, middle and lower registers. Many speakers cannot cover the entire field of sound.



New Type Twin Cylinder Coil For Extra Sharp Tuning

Three of these coils constitute the Radio frequency circuit. The primary and secondary are balanced against each other, so that no extraneous noises are picked up by the coils, and this has the effect of shielding the radio frequency circuit. This makes the set extremely quiet of operation, one hardly hears the set turned on.

Overwhelming Proof of the Public's Confidence

In thousands of homes the David Grimes 5-Tube Radio Receiving Set is living up to all the claims we made for it. Hundreds of letters received by us hold proof of that set's superb receiving qualities. But no 5-tube set can equal a 6-tube one, and so we feel sure that when we say this set is even more remarkable, the public will lend a willing ear to our broadcasting. What may sound over enthusiastic is in reality under enthusiastic—we exhaust our supply of superlatives in trying to describe this latest wonder radio achievement.

Guaranteed by the Makers and by Gilchrist Co.

Guaranteed by the manufacturer and by ourselves. We can well afford to guarantee each set because besides our own reputation for reliability we have a manufacturer who realizes that violating the confidence of the public is business suicide. Every bit of equipment, including the famous speaker, is nationally known and internationally famous for quality and reliability. The manufacturers of the equipment also stand back of their products.

SEEKS AWARD AS 'SALLY O'NEILL'

Mrs. Isabelle Randall, one of the contestants in the Sally O'Neill contest being conducted by the Boston Evening American. An outfit from top to toe, donated by Boston merchants, as well as $50 in gold, awaits the first prize winner.

The Boston merchants are rallying 'round the standard of Boston's Sally O'Neill in an effort to clothe her from head to foot as a special treat to the winner.

But who is this Sally O'Neill to be? We all know now that the real Sally is coming to Loew's State next Monday in "Mike," a great comedy, but the paramount question before the good citizens of Boston is "Who Is Boston's Sally O'Neill."

Girls, girls girls, we have them galore, pretty ones, petite ones, beautiful ones. Boston is noted for its beauties. But where is THE ONE to qualify for the exalted position of Boston's Sally O'Neill.

12 P. M. SHARP SATURDAY.

Look you closely, ye Boston misses, at the picture of Sally O'Neill of film fame that accompanies this story. Do you resemble her in any way? Then mail your photograph in to the "Sally O'Neill Editor" of the Boston Evening American and within the course of a few days it will be published. All photographs must be in the editors office not later than this coming Saturday as the clock strikes midnight. The winners will be published in Monday's Evening American, February 1.

And now comes the meat of our tale.

CHANCE FOR CAREER.

To the girl who resembles the real Sally O'Neill, upon which a committee of judges will pass upon all the photographs received, Saturday midnight, the Boston Evening American will present fifty dollars ($50) in gold pieces, shinning, glittering chunks of gold. To the girls who finish in second and third position, this paper will present twenty-five dollars each.

When Vic Morris, resident manager of Loew's heard of this contest he said:

"Tell the winner, whoever the beauty may be, that if she can either dance of sing or perhaps entertain in some other manner, that I will personally see that she receives an offer from the Loew's Circuit that will take her over the entire loop, from coast to coast."

The merchants of Boston have been splendid in their generosity. The millinery department of Shepard's has conceived and donated a hat creation that they have named 'Sally' to the winner.

MAIL PHOTOS NOW.

Arthur Wallace with shoe concerns at Nos. 447 and 622 Washington street will donate one of his special 'Sally' shoe sensations.

Summerfield's Furniture Store, No. 729 Washington street will present Miss Boston's Sally O'Neill with a special gift and, as related before, Butler's Inc., will donate some exceptionally hosiery.

But where is this Miss Boston's Sally O'Neill.

MAIL YOUR PHOTOGRAPH IN RIGHT NOW TO THE 'SALLY O'NEILL EDITOR' BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

And don't forget—this grand little contest closes this Saturday at midnight sharp.

AGED LOTHARIO PAYS WIDOW TO SHUT UP

Mrs. Shiras Turns Letters Over to Caldwell and Receives $4,500

New York, Jan. 28.—George Brinton Caldwell, wealthy banker and clubman, self-styled "old boy with a young heart," settled the $100,000 "heart balm" suit brought by the comely Clara Eola Shiras out of court.

Mrs. Shiras will receive $4,500, it was learned. For she must sign a settlement and return to the 63 year old banker and former president of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, every letter that he wrote her.

The agreement to settle came after two letters from Caldwell to the 38 year-old life insurance saleswoman had been read to the jury.

THRILL FOR CROWD.

The first question Chester H Lane, attorney for Mrs. Shiras, shot at the aged banker when he took the stand was:

"Did you ever ask Mrs. Shiras to marry you or say that you would marry her?"

"I did not."

Do you remember an incident occurring in her apartment when you helped her on with her wrap and drawing her to you, kissed her and told her you loved her in that gown? A.—I may have.

Q.—And didn't you propose marriage? A.—I did not. She wanted to travel faster than I could. She wanted to do a thing I didn't want to do.

Q.—Were you in love with her the night you took her to the theatre? A.—More or less infatuated.

Q.—And you say you never discussed marriage with her—never talked of having a son? A.—I did not.

COMES THE EVIDENCE.

Attorney Lane then introduced in evidence a letter dated April 25, 1923. Caldwell admitted he had written the letter to Mrs. Shiras. With finger pointed dramatically at the aged defendant, Lane read excerpts from the letter:

"I cannot now pose as a gay Lothario. I am too old and humble. I was travelling too fast for my years. And you are the principal cause.

"I am now living a quiet life in the country with two dogs and four canaries. I am an old boy with a young heart and too much ambition. I will remember you as a friend and very good lover."

The announcement of the settlement of the suit came after the jury had been released for the day. So ended the second suit for "heart balm," brought against Caldwell within sixteen months.

The suit of Miss Zoe M. Evans, a Boston manicurist, for $300,000 for alleged breach of promise, has never come to trial.

EXONERATE MORRISON OF THEFT CHARGES

Attorney Barnard Morrison of the Pemberton building, who was arrested about two weeks ago on the alleged charge of the larceny of $500, was found not guilty and exonerated by Judge Murray in Municipal Criminal Court yesterday.

The lawyer, who is a graduate of the Harvard Law School and a member of the bar for 11 years, had been accused of failing to pay a fine for a client. Attorney Morrison was recommended as a member in good standing in the Boston, Massachusetts and American Bar Associations, and upon explaining that he had received only his fee from the complaining client, he was absolved.

POSTPONE HULTMAN HEARING ONE WEEK

The Joint Rules Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature postponed until next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the hearing scheduled on the petition of Representative Francis X. Coyne and Representative Thomas F. Donovan of Boston for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the business affiliations and connections, if any, of Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission of the Necessaries of Life with any Massachusetts public service corporation.

SAD TO RELATE, HIS CAR BORE WRONG PLATE

Providence, Jan. 28.—It's easy enough to drive autos on ways that are irksome and long; but when a copper states that you've got wrong plates, then everything seems dead wrong.

'Twas all the way from Worcester he tooled his new cabriolet; not a cop or a State policeman appeared to say him "Nay."

And then he drew into this town; and parked near the best hotel. A harness-bull, with a lotta pull, turned life to a Dante's hell.

Says the cop "——————!" but that is censored, or would be in most of the States. Now he'll get 1926 plates.

EARTH TREMBLES IN SARANAC LAKE REGION

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. [illegible]—Earth tremors, lasting several seconds, shook this village.

The shocks were particularly severe along the Saranac River and Lake Flower. One resident reported that a grinding noise accompanied the tremors.

The earthquake, which occurred at 2:25 a. m., frightened many residents, who hurried into cellars in the belief that heaters had exploded.

BUCHANAN DIES SUDDENLY

John Buchanan, insurance journalist, free-lance writer, advertising man and for many years on the editorial staff of the Boston Globe, died suddenly last night.

He was stricken with heart failure in the machine of a friend, Louis E. Crosscup of Wollaston, who rushed him to the City Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

LIQUID JOY OF BUTTER AND EGG MAN SEIZED

Another butter-and-egg man has gone wrong.

It all happened when the liquor squad descended, or to be more truthful, [illegible], upon the apartment of James W. Hession, formerly a wholesale liquor dealer, but now a butter and egg dealer, and removed several barrels, kegs, bottles and cans of alleged liquor.

During the excitement incident to the raid, and there was plenty, Mr. Hession produced a government permit allowing to have 241 quarts of pre-war liquor. The police claim this permit ran out on December 31.

But this discovery was not made until after Captain George W. Patterson, head of the liquor squad, had arrived, just as the members of the squad were about to hoist the contraband liquors back into the butter and egg man's house.

The case will be threshed out later.

CRITICAL AUDIENCE CHEERS TITO SCHIPA TO THE VERY ECHO

PROMINENT BAY STATE MUSIC LOVERS ENTRANCED BY BEAUTIFUL LA TRAVIATA

(Posed Especially for Boston Evening American Staff Photographers Between Acts at the Opera.)

Miss Marjorie Church of Chestnut street, Beacon Hill, who has done much to foster interest in [illegible] concerts. She is one of the opera regulars.

Mrs. George Hawley, also of Chestnut street, whose devotion to opera is a byword among her friends.

Mrs. Chester Whiten Lasell, who came up from Whitensville, R. I., to be present at the opera.

Frank H. Beebe, well-known Bostonian and life-long devotee of all matters musical. He rarely misses an opera 'tis said.

Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge was among those present at the Boston Opera House to hear Signor Schipa in La Traviata.

Miss Margaret Clement of Newbury street, one of the Hub's most constant opera devotees.

Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Boston society matron, whose box at [illegible] is regarded as pleasing fixtures of the opera season.

SOCIETY OUT IN FORCE AT OPERA HOUSE

SALVOS OF APPLAUSE GREETED HANDSOME TITO SCHIPA on his first Boston appearance of the present operatic season—applause that echoed to the roof from a vast and enthusiastically-minded audience filling the Opera House from Row A up to the very rafters.

THE handsome and statuesque Claudia Muzio shared stellar honors and applause for the evening, that spontaneous appreciation so dear to the singer's heart coming from music lovers in every walk in life.

SOCIETY WAS THERE to greet the spirited masculine star, of course, in the stalls and boxes where it is wont to hold forth in the glory of fine raiment and precious jewels. Box parties of gayly attired women and formally correct men filled the entire magic circle.

MUSIC STUDENTS in evening [illegible] were tucked into every available nook and cranny of the big auditorium. For the most they were part bright-eyed girls just essaying the path which may be leads to concert or operatic glory.

THEN, TOO, SCORES of Schipa's [illegible] admirers were out to do him special honor, those ardent music devotees who nightly fill the upper balconies of the house and lend to the picture so much individuality. Altogether, an audience widely representative.

IN THE FOREFRONT of the orchestra, that patron of the Muse, Franklin Beebe of Beacon street, occupied his rightful place, a place long sacred to this staunch supporter of things operatic in Boston.

NO OPERA IS QUITE complete without the patronage and presence of Mr. Beebe, whose Boston mansion boasts a fine music room and who is the patron of many a struggling young musician.

MRS. ALBERT STOKES APSEY, of Cambridge, another music patron and consistent opera supporter, had a group of guests in her orchestra places. Her costume was a petunia crepe worn with a soft silken shawl of the same mauve-pink tone.

MISS DOROTHY POWNING in wrap of sable and gown of green, was in the orchestra with her mother Mrs. Mary Powning handsome in pale mauve crepe and shawl of tulle.

MRS. NORWOOD PENROSE HALLOWELL was a distinguished opera attendant, wearing a costume of her favorite soft gray. A Batchelder family group included Mrs. George L. Batchelder, senior, and Miss Dorothy Batchelder.

ALSO, THAT PRETTY bride of the Batchelder family, formerly Miss Eleanor Batchelder, now Mrs. Uriel Haskell Crocker. She and Mr. Crocker completed the group which had places in the orchestra.

MRS. FRANCIS P. SEARS, in a French frock of white and opera wrap of unspotted ermine, the twin daughters of the Robert Saltonstall family, Miss Harriet and Miss Caroline Saltonstall, and Miss Peggy Porter were of last night's opera enthusiasts.

MISS PORTER'S WHITE fur wrap covered a green gown, while the Saltonstall twins reversed that color scheme and wore identically similar wraps of green and frocks of white.

OPERA GUARANTORS in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis, senior, were in the orchestra. In fact, the orchestra is a vantage point chosen by many a music devotee.

THE CHARLES FANNING AYER reservations last evening were used by Mrs. Ayer and her daughter, Miss Theodora Ayer, and a party of guests. Mrs. Ayer's gown of Venetian velvet and Miss Ayer's hyacinthe blue lace were notable when everyone promenaded.

MRS. THOMAS PROCTOR MANDELL in gown of gold, Mrs. Phineas Shaw Sprague (both these are young matrons a year or two from bridal days) in white with ermine wrap, Miss Virginia Gardner in wine red velvet, Miss Ruth Grew in black velvet, Miss Rosamond Blanchard in rose frock and gray velvet wrap were some of the younger set in attendance.

DAINTY MISS CATHARINE ROBB in black and white, Miss Evelyn Windeler in orchid crepe, Miss Rosamond Thomas in pale soft green, Miss Harriet Royce stunning in Lanvin green, Mrs. Thomas E. Proctor [illegible] in silver cloth with cerise velvet emphasized by their presence the fact that opera is becoming the thing to the young set.

IN FACT, IT WAS entirely "Youth's Day" at the Opera House for "Carmen." From tiny tots to buds and college men, every age was represented in the large and demonstrative audience that greeted Garden in her inimitable portrayal of the Gypsy.

BOYS AND GIRLS were there, all athrill for the marvellously colorful performance and tasting in perspective their own debut in future years as grand opera guarantors and supporters.

STALLS AND BOXES held many a merry family party, the whole auditorium aflutter with the youngest set. The pretty debutante was there; also the sub-debutante and the small brothers and sisters of each.

LIKEWISE, THE ELDER brothers, those dignified young men from across the River Charles who fill the stag line at routs and balls, and play the squire of dames to the ever lovely and blithe young feminine belle.

Betty Alden

Moses Smith's criticism of the Opera is on Page 19.

Opera Comment by Society Matrons

MRS. WILLIAM GORDON MEANS: Ansseau was in splendid voice, and Garden, always a marvelous actress, made of Carmen a compelling figure, all beauty and fire. There is but one Mary Garden.

MRS. ROBERT SALTONSTALL: Carmen magnificently done. The action, the scenery, the voices, each superb. A performance of Carmen such as Boston rarely, if ever, has seen equalled.

MRS. B. H. BRISTOW DRAPER: Garden surpassed all. A Carmen such as only Mary Garden can portray, and delighting her ardent admirers, of which I am one.

MRS. A. LOVELL LITTLE: Muzio, with her beautiful coloratura voice, was a delight to the ear, and her statuesque beauty lends enchantment to a beautiful stage picture.

MRS. FRANCIS SEARS: Such fire, such fervor, such a golden voice. Schipa enthralled his hearers and added new laurels to his crown of glory.

MRS. ALICE HOUSTON STEVENS: Schipa has a voice of liquid gold, and Muzio is without question a leading prima donna. A performance all life and color and most satisfying artistically.

MRS. ALBERT STOKES APSEY: A thoroughly satisfying performance. Muzio and Schipa both were splendid, and the company improves steadily.

GROUP OF BEAUTIFUL SOCIETY GIRLS WHO LET MUSIC CHARM THEM

(Posed for Boston Evening American Photographers at the Opera.)

Madeline Fowler, opera admirer, of Concord, N. H., who heard Schipa in "La Traviata" at the Boston Opera House last night.

Eva Braveman, New England Conservatory girl, present at the opera as guest of Mr. Flanders.

Hannah Evans of Utica, N. Y., was an interested listener to Schipa and other stars in "La Traviata."

Hazel Dunlop, New England Conservatory pupil, who snatched a few hours from study to attend the opera.

Polly Moser, who, as guest of Mr. Flanders, heard "La Traviata" at the Opera House.

Katheryn Buchanan of Randolph, N. Y., among those present at the performance of Verdi's opera, "La Traviata."

WORLD COURT VOTE CURBS PRESIDENT

Transfers Executive's Power to Senate to Submit Disputes

Washington, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.)—Three years of tumult and shouting over the World Court came to an end today.

America is in the Court, theoretically, at least, and official Washington began to take stock of just what that means.

Both sides emerged from the memorable struggle with a measure of victory. And the Senate itself is the chief beneficiary.

"As a matter of fact," one international authority observed, "this vote means no more than a renewal of our adherence to the old Hague Tribunal, under which the President could submit a disputed case to arbitration."

SENATE'S NEW POWER.

In the case of the World Court the Senate has now taken over the determination of cases involving American interest shall be submitted to the operation of international justice.

It represents a distinct loss for executive power in the handling of international relations, and a distinct gain in power for the Senate in its never-ending conflict with the executive.

There have been few more dramatic moments in Senate history than that when the three year battle ended. The vote was 76 to 17, fourteen more than the two thirds necessary to ratify.

America is theoretically in the Court—yet actual American participation is still a long way off and is hedged about with so many ifs, ands and buts, that a court decision affecting the United States appears only in the dim and misty future.

EASY TO SHUT U. S. OUT.

The emasculating reservations attached to the original Harding-Hughes proposal must be ratified by 49 other nations before the American adherence becomes actual.

Each of these 49 nations must, by an exchange of notes with the State Department, signify their willingness to let America go in on her own terms. This procedure alone may take several years.

Should even the smallest nation decline to consent, then the Senate's vote of adherence means nothing.

The little band of irreconcilables, who bitterly opposed American adherence, claimed their greatest victory in the reservations.

FAIL TO FIND 'MASTER MINDS' IN JAIL TESTS

If there are "master minds" in the criminal underworld they don't go to jail, according to the findings of the State Department of Mental Diseases, which has just examined mentally some 1,500 prisoners in various county jails. Not only was no mental giant found but nearly 200 were mentally defective, according to the report of the examiners. Alcoholism appeared to have the most victims, while diseases and sheer feeble-mindedness were responsible for the conditions of many others.

BERLIN TIES BOW ON NECK OF FROZEN "HOT DOGS"

Berlin, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—In order that the people of Berlin may not be fooled as to the grade of meat in their sausages those made of frozen article are to be tagged.

Such sausages henceforth must wear a bow of bright yellow ribbon tied about them, under a ruling of the department of [illegible] and inspection.

Notwithstanding the abolition of import duties on frozen meat, the department charges that many butchers have been selling sausages manufactured of frozen meat at the same price as the fresh meat article.

The yellow ribbon, it is presumed by the department, will prove a preventive against profiteering.

GAMBLING HELPS GRAIN PRICES, SENATE IS TOLD

Washington, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Fred G. Winter, a board member of the Quaker Oats Company, told the Senate Agricultural Committee today that speculators kept up the price of grain rather than forced it down. He appeared in opposition to the Caraway bill which would prohibit trading in cotton and grain futures and declared that if the futures market was removed there would be such wide fluctuations in the price of grain that all dealers and producers would be in a dangerous position.

80,000,000 GALLONS OF RUM FOR THIRSTY RUSSIANS

Moscow, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—To satisfy the ever-growing thirst of the Russian population, the Soviet government in 1926 will produce 77,000,000 gallons of vodka of 40 per cent strength. The government also will produce 3,000,000 gallons of brandy and liqueurs of 60 per cent strength.

The total cost of the production of [illegible] for the coming year is estimated at [illegible], from which the State will derive a revenue of approximately [illegible]

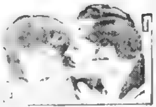
Gilded Kisses by BEATRICE BURTON



A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE AND MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. They work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm

Mary Rose is secretary to the sales manager, JOHN MANNERS, and is in love with him. He is engaged to DORIS HINIG an heiress. Because of her feeling for him, Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry TOM FITZROY, a young doctor.

Flossie, a born flirt, spends most of her time running around with the head of the concern, HILARY DEXTER, although she's engaged to his secretary, SAM JESSUP.

John Manners takes Mary Rose home to meet his invalid mother, and after several weeks when they see each other often, tells her he loves her and always will, even if he marries Doris. Then the two sisters quarrel and Flossie gets even with Mary Rose by telling Manners that she's "just stringing him along" and really loves Tom Fitzroy and intends to marry him. Mary Rose wonders at his sudden coldness toward her

The office has a Hallowe'en masquerade but Mary Rose doesn't go. Instead she reads to John Manners' mother, and afterward Tom drives her to his house. Tom's mother tells her how jealous Doris Hinig is of her. Tom tells her that he just saw Doris and Manners out driving together.

WE SELL WHAT WE ADVERTISE—AS ADVERTISED

There is no doubt a great fascination in picking up long distance with your radio set. Good etiquette, however, demands that when you are entertaining company you should let the long distance alone and tune in something worth while from a local station.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN
VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR
SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

The benefits of radio to the average healthy person are few when compared to the great blessing it has been to the thousands of shut-ins who have to depend upon it for their contact with the outside world.

Clear the Air First

"Super Power" Follow Elimination of Interference

Of late much has been said about the great "cure-all" properties of super power broadcasting.

Men who have the interest of these stations at heart claim that it is only through the use of thousands of watts in the transmitting antenna that the use of "perfectly balanced" long distance telephone lines can be avoided in the serving of great numbers of people simultaneously.

But on this point the radio fan is to be the judge. It will be the individual listener who will say whether he prefers a super power station 500 miles away to a local station ten miles away which is being fed by a "perfectly balanced" telephone line.

Of much greater importance than this question, however, is the question of eliminating some of the unnecessary interference which now exists in every large city.

This interference comes from the use of oscillating receiving sets, vibrating types of battery chargers, violet ray machines and radio code signals which could be eliminated through the use of proper equipment.

It is high time we Americans got busy and cleaned up the air.

The time is not yet ripe for "super-power." Let us first obtain a clear atmosphere in which to enjoy the present status of broadcasting.

Will it require legislation to do this? That is the question.

DX Conditions Last Night

By "THE DOCTOR"

The static was light during the first part of the evening, but gradually became worse as the night wore on.

Plenty of whistles were in evidence from those who were struggling to "hear Europe."

Excepting for the static, it would have been an ideal night.

Reception from the Southern stations was best.

H. C. - HARVARD RIVALRY RENEWED IN RELAY

PURPLE TEAM IS STRONG

Both Combinations Are Formidable and Out to Hang Crepe on the Other

By STED CHANDLER

Sted Chandler

The K of [illegible] meet will put [illegible] many features in team and indivi[illegible] racing, but not least among these will be [illegible] earnest rivalry between some of the contestants.

It appears that one of the most interesting events from the point of view will be the Harvard-Holy Cross relay. During the past few years the rivalry between the Jesuits and the Cantabrigians has ripened with remarkable speed and fervor.

The Purple's coup d'etat, so to speak, in walking heavily upon Harvard's eleven last Fall, brought things to a head. Harvard has a fine track squad this year, with its natural ability backed by a strong determination to avenge the gridiron disaster. Holy Cross has a fine track squad this year, also, and it is equally determined to uphold the reputation won by the Purple upon the gridiron.

"The personnel of the relay team [illegible] races is not definitely de[illegible] means [illegible] [illegible] record breakers perform on the cards.

[illegible] other two places will be [illegible] for by Tom Roche and Tom [illegible] who raced in the Brooklyn [illegible] and by Murphy, Re[illegible] Mahe[illegible] M[illegible] McDonald [illegible]

She shook her head impatiently.

"And that's exactly what Flossie's going to do!" she added after a minute or two. "I don't wish anybody [illegible] bad luck, but sometimes I almost wish that Wheezer would blow up with Sam Jessup in it!"

Flossie's Dance

Mary Rose laughed, then suddenly sobered. "If only Flossie is half as happy with Sam as [illegible] with my father [illegible] lucky [illegible]"

But Mrs. Middleton couldn't see it that way. [illegible] couldn't see what Flossie could find to like in Sam Jessup. "If he were the Prince of Wales she [illegible] dislike him," she said with spirit.

The clock struck eleven.

"Well, I suppose Flossie's the belle of the ball tonight," Mrs. Middleton remarked, looking up at it.

Even his wife, his grown children and the men he played golf with treated him with ill-concealed awe.

But Flossie made him forget that he was rich and successful and forty-six years old. She danced with him and laughed with him and at him.

Sometimes she slapped his face and called him "fresh" when he tried to kiss her. So far he had not kissed her. He almost had that day on the stairs when Mary Rose had seen them together—almost.

But tonight, as he looked at her, Hilary Dexter felt that he couldn't do without Flossie much longer. He wanted to hold her in his arms [illegible] her sweet, warm [illegible] close to him—her red mouth that was like a red flower [illegible] kisses [illegible]

Flossie Afraid

"He'll probably say that it's funny that we've both disappeared," Dexter answered. "And the rest of them will [illegible] what he says. Why should we worry?"

Something [illegible] made her look [illegible] She wondered if she ought to get into the big car and go riding with him alone. Where Is the Lover of Yesteryear?

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

THE girl who reads the fiction of today is usually very well content with the young man who fills the hero role of today. It makes him out a very dashing though a very complicated and cautious young chap. Cautious I mean in the way of sacrifice and belief. He does not seem to jump into rivers for anybody or to fight over the bright scarf of a beautiful girl. There seem to be plenty of bright scarves and beautiful girls—but no mean looks. And the young hero himself swears there is no demand for fights, not even from the beautiful girl [illegible]

But the girl who reads in the mighty romance of actualities and gets all wrapped up in the marvelous tapestry where role and fought and loved the heroes and lovers of history, will set up a figure so bright, so courageous, so impulsive for an ideal, so unconquered with [illegible] to the figure of her hea[illegible] of ideals along with his [illegible]

SPOILING CHILDREN

HOW very difficult it is to find the juste milieu—with not too much petting, but enough to make childhood sweet and sunny, a treasured remembrance to carry throughout life!

Nothing is more tragic than a sad child, whom nobody has ever loved, "spoiled" or been kind to.

There are certain books written about ill-treated children who have never known a [illegible] moment's joy, never a soft word. I cannot read those books. They torture me intolerably.

Dickens had a wonderful way of describing the lives of tortured children. But often I had to lay these novels down; I could not read them to the end.

If we indulge children too much it is undeniable that they become ungrateful, arrogant, bad-mannered and completely odious.

There is much said nowadays of letting the child "express itself." This is all very well up to a point. But children are little animals. Their instincts are primitive, their judgment undeveloped. If you give them free rein, the ego becomes exaggerated and the child is not only obnoxious to those around him, but is cruelly unfitted for life. Life does not permit us to act as we feel, without restraint or consideration of others. And by the time the untrained child is old enough to discover this it is too late for him to change his ways.

On the other hand one must not take away a child's confidence in himself. His nature must be studied individually to find out how much praise he can stand without becoming boastful and his progress retarded.

On the whole, I have found that one must encourage a child always as much as possible. [illegible] never [illegible] it or [illegible] at its first [illegible]. Children are like sensitive plants, which shut up at a touch, their sweetness lost forever. One can permanently embitter a child by turning it to ridicule.

A child must not get desired things too easily. If everything comes at the first asking it cannot learn real gratitude nor real values. It will always expect too much of life in later years and the disappointments and disillusions will be too poignant.

Each of my own six children had to be treated differently. No rule did for all, and in spite of my care I still made mistakes and reaped disappointments.

Yet I certainly lean towards being too kind, rather than show too little affection, understanding and patience—especially patience.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CHILDREN hate to be dosed with medicine. Vicks VapoRub relieves colds, without dosing, in two ways at once. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages and lungs;

(2) At the same time it acts through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain, tightness and soreness.

Of course Vicks is just as good for the cold troubles of adults.

DAILY SHORT STORY

MRS. BRYSON'S BOOK

By Merlyn Swift

"WHATEVER po[illegible] Paul Bryson to [illegible] to such an impossible [illegible] You k[illegible] [illegible]

"Wh[illegible] I asked her if she was fond of [illegible] she said [illegible] so [illegible] know who he was."

Mrs. Marven, leader of [illegible] who could [illegible] Mrs. Tully's [illegible] her sort [illegible] Doreen [illegible] [illegible] were not talking about Ba[illegible] conversation seemed [illegible] animated.

Condemned Her.

Se[illegible] Marven and [illegible] ladies of [illegible] and equal breadth of culture, continued to condemn her from their highbrow elevation.

"It seems he found her at some [illegible] or hotel up the [illegible] last August, fell in love [illegible] off and married [illegible] week [illegible] Mrs. Aver[illegible] [illegible] stays at [illegible]. Has such a [illegible] and [illegible] I wonder how he endures her. She has never read R[illegible] and [illegible] nothing of [illegible] she thought Longfellow was [illegible]"

Mrs. Avery's sister [illegible] looked properly horrified.

"And as for Russian literature," [illegible] in Mrs. D[illegible], who adored [illegible] sure she does not know [illegible]. I tried her with T[illegible] [illegible] she merely [illegible]. She must have no [illegible] pursuits whatever."

Thus thoroughly was Doreen condemned, thrust [illegible] realm of the literati and made a moron because of her [illegible] the [illegible]. Yet in spite of her appalling ignorance, Paul, when he came to her side, looked at her with whole hearted adoration—such adoration as Mr. Marven, Mr. Avery or Mr. Daintry, if they felt any of it for their [illegible], kept carefully under cover.

"Are you tired, dear?" asked Paul. "Shall we go home? Mrs. Tully's affairs are so long and boresome and I'm frightfully hungry after all that tea. Can't you scare up a headache or something?"

She looked at him knowingly. "Paul, I fear for you. Here you throw aside the wonderful chance of talking poetry, art, and beauty and want to go home. I wonder how you put up with my dumbness."

Hungry and Bored

"I'd hate to have a poetic wife, Dodo," grinned Paul. "I'm hungry, old thing. Let's go home."

Puzzled and injured stares followed the Brysons when they left early, and lovingly. "You would think he'd try to make her read a book or two," coldly remarked Mrs. Marven. "He must get lonely at times for intelectual companionship. She'll never hold him. It's a woman's duty to participate in her husband's pursuits and he's a writer. I call it a miracle that he sticks to her as he does. It must be sheer courage on his part, but it won't last long."

Contrary to Mrs. Marven's pessimistic prophesy, it did last long and throve exceeding well. But little Mrs. Bryson never attended French clubs or reading circles, never cultivate the superior intellects of the ladies in her husband's set, never sent poetry to the papers or wrote extreme letetrs on woman's rights. She was accordingly voted a lowbrow and merely tolerated. That was before the Daintrys gave a skiing party at their mountain cottage.

Doreen attended the party just because of Paul. Six married couples and each wife, Doreen excluded, stamped with the mark of culture, went to the Daintry's.

That was Doreen's day. Balzac did not make one graceful on skis. Rossetti could not keep one's nose out of the snowdrifts. Tolstoi and his hairy tribe wrote little about Winter-sports; but Doreen, mountain-bred, sailed along with exquisite ease.

More Precious

The intellegentsia were out-skiied, outshone. They became a trifle more gracious to the impossible Mrs. Bryson. At least, they conceded, she could do somehting.

Wearily, hungrily they tramped back to the loge, their progress hastened by the succulent prospect of hot biscuits, coffee, bacon and other things that taste especially good after Winter frolic.

There was an ominous quiet about the place. The dining room looked unpromising. There were no delightful odors of coffee or browning bacon. Daintry himself returned from the kitchen with a haunted and starving air. His voice, as will the strongest man's at such awful moments, trembled pitifully.

"Folks," he said in a traigc tremolo, "The cook's [redacted].. left.... quit. She left a note.... a note ... saying the mistress was too.. too dam poetical! If you all are as hungry as I am. It's more serious than an earthquake."

Alas for the consolations of literature when hunger makes the belt feel strange and one is marooned on the mountains. Poetry is a poor substitute for pot roast.

As before observed, it was Mrs. Bryson's day. Easily she took the lead and the kitchen which was a fore[illegible] and to her clever companions, had no mysteries for her.

Held Sway

Ah, but that was a sight for hungry husbands! Mrs. Marven passionately peeled potatoes, Mrs. Avery soulfully sifted flour, Mrs. Daintry delved into corners of her kitchen that she hadn't dreamed existed. And over all their palpably amateurish activities Doreen, supreme, capable, assured, held unquestioned sway.

It was a grand repast. The men were sincerely enthusiastic. Daintry proposed a toast to Mrs. Bryson which made her blush entrancingly and confused her so that she could not reply. Her husband answered for her. He had long been wise concerning the other ladies' opinion of his wife. He was the proudest man there.

"Dodo is not so keen on poetry and plays, she does not sing, recite or compose, but . . . she knows her book! What's your book, Dodo?"

"The cook-book, Paul," she said shyly.

FOXY GRANDPA'S DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"THERE are bison up in this country," I remarked, switching my camera from one shoulder to the other, "and I would certainly like to get a picture of one."

"We call bison 'buffaloes' in our country, don't we?" asked Bobby.

"We do, Bobby," I replied, "and over here in India they call them gaur."

"They grow pretty big, too, I've heard," said Bobby.

"Yes," I agreed, "and I would like to see one of those fellows that measures over seven feet from his shoulder to the ground."

"Whew!" said Bobby, and Bunny shook in his head until his whiskers even wiggled.

"I suppose they live on plains just like our buffaloes at home do," suggested Bobby.

"I imagine so," I said.

"We'll be coming to a plain pretty soon, I think," ventured Bunny. "This wood can't last forever." And he gave a great bound and was soon out of sight.

We kept going and in a little while Bunny came hopping back and said:

"There's a plain below, Foxy Grandpa and if I were you I'd have your camera ready, for you never know what you will see on such a plain as this. And I think we'd better stay up here on this hill."

Not a word did I say, but followed Bunny's advice and when we were finally out of the woods we found ourselves up on the brow of a hill overlooking a great stretch of level ground.

We sat down under a tree and Bunny sat up on his hind legs scanning the country before us.

"There they are," he whispered and pointed to some brown spots far off in the distance.

"What?" I asked.

"Gaur," he whispered. "I thought I smelt them. We'll stay right here."

You can imagine our excitement of waiting. But in a little while the herd moved on and the brown spots took shape as they drew nearer and soon they were there—right at the foot of our hill—about forty big Indian bison!

"I think that fellow is coming up," whispered Bunny as the leader sniffed the air and looked up the hill.

Now, you know buffaloes are very nosey and inquisitive, and those Indian buffaloes were not different from their foreign relations.

Sure enough, the big fellow came clambering up the hill and stood looking at us with his great eyes. Yes, we were all a little bit frightened, and perhaps more than a little bit, to tell the truth, but we didn't move. I snapped a picture of him and then, what do you think he did?

He lowered his head—at first I thought he was going to charge. But he didn't. He picked up some small pebbles in his nostrils—we could hear him snuffing them up—and then he blew them at us and they came with the force of an air-rifle.

Then he turned tail and the herd went plunging down and soon they were brown spots again.

"Well, I'll be jiggered," said Bunny. "That's a new one."

Be Quick To Stop That Cold

IF you act immediately you can stop nine colds in ten. Millions do it with hot lemonade. But they "get" them at the start—when they first suspect a cold. And colds always warn you so you have the chance.

Take the drink at the first sign, then cover warm in bed. All traces in the morning usually have disappeared.

Thus, over night, you may save many days of sickness and the money these days cost.

No one wants pneumonia or the "flu" and this is the way in which millions now prevent them—the cheapest, easiest, surest, safest way.

Try it and you, too, will always use this method. Get a dozen lemons now, to be prepared.

Just squeeze the juice of a lemon in glass or cup of hot water. The effectiveness of hot lemonade is due to more than its heat. Add sugar if you wish.

Ask for California lemons, the tart, juicy, practically seedless kind. They make the most effective lemonade for colds.

LACK OF SNOW BIG HELP FOR N. E. RAILS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Lack of snow during the present Winter is going to prove a big asset for New England railroads. Profits from earnings will be greatly increased as a result of the mild weather. However much the children may like to see good snowfalls railroad men have no such desire. Not only has the mild weather up to today helped the steam lines, but also the Boston Elevated and the Eastern Massachusetts.

Maine Central Railroad in 1925 met the most optimistic expectations. It earned a surplus after charges of $1,177,000 comparing with a surplus of $259,022 in 1924 and constituting the best net result since 1917. The 1925 balance after charges was equal to $33.22 per share on the small issue of $3,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock outstanding against $12.96 per share in 1924 and 34 cents in 1923.

If granted to all roads serving New England territory, an increase of 20 per cent. on milk from New Hampshire would mean an additional annual cost of about $130,000 in getting milk into New England markets, according to W. H. Bronson of New England Milk Producers' Association. He says the total freight bill on milk from New Hampshire to Boston and other Southern New England markets is approximately $650,000 annually. Vermont's total bill under present rate is about $2,200,000, which would be raised $440,000 by the proposed increase, according to Mr. Bronson.

Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has contracted to supply the electric power for the new Hotel Statler now building in the Park Square district, the contract calling for a connected load of more than 2,000 horsepower when the hotel opens next Fall.

The hotel itself will install its own auxiliary power plant with a capacity of 1,000 horsepower, making provision for an estimated use in the hotel and in the office building combined with it for 4,200,00 kilowatt hours a year. Edison officials say that this will provide more electricity in this one building than is used for lighting the streets, the stores and the homes of Wakefield, a town of 15,000 inhabitants.

Boston & Maine Railroad has brought to aid of its maintenance of way forces in the past year new mechanical and motorized equipment costing $100,000 in a program intended to improve and increase maintenance work.

* * *

A mechanical ditch digger, which does the work of a large number of men, cutting costs materially and doing a better job, is one recent acquisition. Automotive section cars, displacing in part the old familiar hand-pump car, mechanical tie-tamping outfits, and locomotive steam cranes, equipped with electrically operated magnets for handling metal in bulk, are among several other forms of machine equipment purchased recently. With the two new snowplows which were put into commission for main line service at Ayer and Mechanicville, N. Y., during the last storm, and the new steam-thawing appliances with which thirteen locomotives are now equipped, Boston & Maine has further augmented facilities for effective maintenance of way work.

Mr. Nash believes the rubber problem will work itself out satisfactorily.

OFFICIALS PLEDGED TO COMMON STOCK STUDY

Committee on stock list, with approval and indorsement of governing committee of New York Stock Exchange, says: "The committee on stock list has for some weeks had under consideration certain tendencies in modern corporate organizations of which the committee considers that it should take cognizance.

"One of these tendencies has to do with creation of two classes of common stock, between which the only substantial difference lies in the fact that one class votes while the other does not. Without at this time attempting to formulate a definite policy, attention should be drawn to the fact that in the future the committee, in considering applications for listing securities, will give careful thought to the matter of voting control."

SHOE BUSINESS IS SHOWING REVIVAL

United Shoe Machinery Corp. has for some weeks been feeling the benefits of the revival in the boot and shoe business. While the Beverly factory is at the moment operating around only 70 per cent. capacity, in order better to balance inventories, manufacturing activities have been above average for some time.

With so many subsidiaries and so many foreign activities it is impossible to estimate United Shoe profits to a nicety until after the fiscal year is closed and all adjustments are made, especially with respect to subsidiary dividends. But from the manner in which shoe business improved in 1925 it seems safe to estimate net for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1926, at well over $8,000,000, probably the best year on record.

A net of $8,000,000 or more before taxes, would spell a balance of about $3.34 a share for 1,941,000 shares of common stock after allowances for taxes and preferred dividends. In only two other fiscal years, 1924 and 1920, has net reached the $8,000,000 figure.

It will be recalled that last September United Shoe declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, making a total of $3.50 for the year. This would seem to indicate a disposition while business conditions are sound, to pay out the major portion of earnings.

BANK OF ENGLAND'S RESERVE INCREASES

London, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes, in pounds: Total reserve increased 50,000, circulation increased 443,000, bullion increased 493,000, other securities decreased 4,410,000, public deposits increased 3,105,000, other deposits decreased 7,815,000, notes reserve increased 179,000 and government securities decreased 290,000.

Wall Street Gossip

MIDDLE STATES Oil's early reorganization is planned.

MISSOURI-KANSAS-TEXAS lines earned in 1925 surplus of $5.41 a share of common, against $4.72 a share in 1924.

PRESSED STEEL CAR recapitalization plan provides for $16,200,000 cumulative 7 per cent. preferred and $46,300,000 common.

BROCKTON will receive bids until Feb. 2 for purchase of $20,000 4 per cent. school bonds.

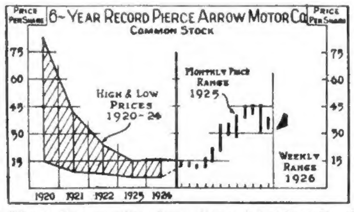
KEENE, N. H., will receive bids until Feb. 1 for purchase of discount of $100,000 loan, payable Dec. 6.

COUNTY OF BRISTOL will receive bids until Feb. 2 for purchase at discount of $150,000 loan.

MANCHESTER, N. H., will receive bids until Feb. 1 for purchase of $400,000 loan.

Bonds Soon Taken

Prompt over-subscription was reported today for the $30,000,000 issue of general mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and the $10,000,000 issue of refunding 6 per cent. debenture bonds of the Cities Service Company.



When the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company manufactured only high priced cars, its field of operation was necessarily limited.

Realizing this, in 1924 the company broadened its field of operation by making a medium priced six-cylinder type of car. This change of policy materially increased sales. Bus and truck production, to which the company is giving special attention, was, during the first seven months of 1925, 70 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1924, and in the third quarter of 1925 was 178 per cent. over the corresponding previous quarter.

The company's funded debt consists of $4,200,000 debenture sinking fund gold bonds due in 1943. Outstanding capital stock consists of $10,000,000 no par value 8 per cent. preferred. Two hundred and fifty thousand shares of no par common stock are also outstanding.

In recent years the earning records of the company have not been particularly impressive, the average net profit for nine years ended in 1924 being equal to only 27 cents per share on the common stock. Losses to the amount of more than $8,000,000 were the result of operations for 1921.

This large loss was chiefly responsible for the low nine-year average. Income statement for 1924 showed $6.25 earned on the 8 per cent. preferred stock compared with $2.78 earned on the same issue in 1923.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Florida, Jan. 28.—Automobiling, automobiling, automobiling, subdivision, sub-division, sub-division.

Towards the end of the day I remarked to my hosts: "I have kept careful count of the orange trees and the grape fruit trees and also all the new sub-divisions. The subdivisions easily outnumber the fruit trees!"

This is, of course, an exaggeration, but the joke did contain enough truth to give it a rather sharp point.

Enough lots have been prepared on maps—or plats, as they call them—to house a large part of America's total population. Many, many of these lots will never get beyond the paper stage. In large numbers of these sub-divisions some attempt has been made to open "streets" and to lay more or less curbing.

Apparently an ambitious, ornamental gateway has been found a strong selling point, for its is a poor sub-division indeed which does not boast a pretentious structure, usually an arch, at the entrance. I rather imagine that these imposing gates are freely photographed and flashed before "prospects," especially where selling is done by mail.

Frankly, the gate is about all that certain sub-divisions consist of.

Please understand that there are many absolutely legitimate, fully laid out sub-divisions, equipped with streets, sidewalks, sewerage, water, gas electricity, etc. not a few have attracted genuine home seekers who have built pleasing houses. Where this stage has been reached the market value of lots in many instances has advanced, even doubled, trebled and quadrupled.

But it is as plain as one's nose that thousands of persons of modest means throughout the country who blindly bought lots which they have never seen will lose heavily. In too many cases, I fear the lots will sink back to the value of under undeveloped farm land.

To my mind, this is the most unpleasant feature of the whole Florida activity. From what one is told, apparently many fake promoters have been busy throughout the land. But there will be losses also, in many sub-divisions launched by honest but unsubstantial operators.

One cannot see the slightest justification for scores and scores of the attempts being made to found new communities. At many places there is no possibility of finding nearby employment, no means of earning a livelihood. There is nothing special to attract the well-to-do who do not need to work. The scenery is ordinary, there are no bathing facilities, no amusements, nothing.

The main "attraction" advertised on bill boards by one sub-division is that it has a mile of frontage on a highway! evidently, to be within sight of a road is considered an effective selling point. This will give you some idea of how little some of the scheming promoters have to offer.

Senate Abdicates Its Right to Be a Deliberative Body

The United States Government is now without a deliberative body.

The House of Representatives ceased to be deliberative long ago and now the Senate has followed in its footsteps. And as the House has become the mere echo of the partisan caucus, so must the Senate fall from its former dignity and power.

Cloture has been enforced twice, and "twice" is a habit with a parliamentary body.

Before it was denatured, the United States Senate was the greatest deliberative body in the world, and year in and year out the most potent restraining force in our government. Its traditions were sacred; its pride was a national asset; its independence was a priceless value.

The Senate was formerly an eagle; this new-fangled Senate is collectively a nest of cuckoos. The Senate formerly was the last ditch in the fight between constitutional government and the subtle, sinister encroachment of the money-power outside, or executive domination inside, the government. Hereafter there is no obstacle in the pathway of either.

Unlimited debate made the Senate great, made it independent, enabled it without the assistance of the House of Representatives to preserve that equal power which the fathers ordained the legislative branch should have with the Executive. Henceforth the legislative department is just a humble servant to do the bidding of the Executive.

Unlimited debate never killed one meritorious measure, but it did kill many vicious measures, notably the Force Bill and the League of Nations.

It is almost inconceivable that Southern Democratic Senators could have been induced to strangle freedom of debate after freedom of debate saved the South from a revival of carpet-bag government.

And to think these Southern Democratic Senators did it when there was no compulsion whatever to do it, to think that they did it in order to rescue a Republican President from the consequences of a split in his own party!

If any of these Southern Democratic Senators had announced his hostility to unlimited Senatorial debate while running for his nomination he would have been defeated by a practically unanimous vote.

When some Republican shall resurrect the bill of the late Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, which proposes to reduce Southern representation in the House and Southern votes in the Electoral College, then the astounding political betrayal of these Southern Democratic Senators will be brought home to Dixie!

The day of reckoning awaits all Senators who voted to stifle debate on this great issue, for up to date Senator Butler and Vice-President Dawes have not been able to devise a plan for enforcing a cloture rule against the American people!

The voters in many States will have a chance this year to decide whether they want real Senators to represent them or whether they want Legislative Red Caps who will run errands for somebody down at Washington!

5 O'Clock in the Morning

WOMEN, Once Upon a Time, Began Work at That Hour in Our Cotton Mills

Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, member of Congress from the Fifth District, has been telling the Women's Industrial Conference something about the olden days in the textile mills.

In 1839, Massachusetts women worked on the average 12 hours and 13 minutes a day, or 73 hours and 18 minutes in the week.

They were employed 11 hours and 24 minutes daily, in December and January, and 13 hours and 31 minutes in April, when days were longer.

During the four Summer months, work began at 5 o'clock in the morning; in the eight other months, as soon as it was light enough to see.

> "The work in the mills is often trying, due to the ceaseless noise of the machinery and the fact that much of the work must be done standing, with only a few minutes' rest at times during the entire day, a condition which is very hard for many women. Much of the work also must be done in a damp and hot atmosphere, for if the air in the rooms is too dry the threads may break."

There are 53,000 women at work in the cotton mills, 25,000 in woolen and worsted mills, 31,000 in the shoe factories and 11,000 in clothing factories.

Mrs. Rogers told how, beginning in 1879 with a 10-hour law, the Commonwealth began to show a livelier interest in the woman worker. The 48-hour bill law, which bears the signature of Calvin Coolidge as Governor, did not come until 1919. There are no longer any sweat hops. In the mills, sanitation and lighting have greatly improved.

Who would take a single step backward?

Milton as Real Estater

Voltaire, Grain Speculator

It appears that when the great Milton was not writing in the name of Cromwell, and in powerful Latin, letters threatening the Pope, or writing in rolling sonorous English, about Lucifer, that "sun of the morning," or about Eve listening to the queer snake that stood erect on the tip of its tail, the author of Paradise Lost was dealing in London real estate with his father and making money.

That's not surprising. There is only one kind of intelligence. Making money is the least difficult and the least important of its many occupations.

Voltaire who could write the "Philosophical Dictionary," upset the decisions of brutal courts that tortured men and women, and tear down the worthless French kings from their thrones, could also MAKE MONEY.

He made it in grain deals, and he could have been a great art dealer. He selected pictures and books with excellent taste.

The Russian Empress Catherine was wise when she bought furniture, books, everything in his house. Voltaire, by the way, employed a Catholic priest to do his buying and look after his business for him. That was one man he knew he could trust.

GREENLAND BREEDER OF STORMS

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE great ice-buried continent of Greenland, 1,500 miles long, whose frozen white burden rises to culminating heights of 10,000 feet, has long been known as the source not only of the iceberg perils of the North Atlantic Ocean, but of the chilling sea-current that sweeps down from the Arctic, and, crowding in between the Gulf Stream and the coast of the United States, sheers the warm current off toward northern Europe, making our Winters and Springs colder than they ought to be in the latitude of the Eastern States.

But it now appears that there is another side to Greenland's activity as a weather disturber, which in some degree readjusts the balance by making Europe instead of America the sufferer. It is believed that down-rushing cold winds from the high icy back of Greenland are the cause of the freezing Winter whirls that often afflict Europe.

United Storms.

They do this, according to Professor W. H. Hobbs, by combining with and stimulating the regular Atlantic-crossing cyclones, after the latter have begun to lose their energy in mid-ocean. The united storms then turn and descend upon the European shores with overwhelming fury.

The Greenland winds are described as "pouring" or "falling" off the huge round shoulders of the white continent with terrific speed. The vast elevated expanse of solid ice, which is probably thousands of feet in thickness, is overlaid with excessively cold, and consequently dense and heavy, air, and this flows down the great sloping sides that descend from central Greenland in all directions to sea level, whirling and gathering speed until it often attains a hundred miles an hour. Having dropped to sea level, it rushes horizontally outward and as already said, often meets and combines forces with an ocean-crossing cyclone, which but for this reinforcement might have taken a different course or died out before reaching land. It is said that, owing to the speed that the cold air gathers in sliding down from the Greenland crests, its temperature after reaching the sea goes up in a short time seventy or eighty degrees. This heat is derived from the arrested kinetic energy of the falling air.

Thus gravitation is the force immediately responsible for Greenland's action upon the north Atlantic Ocean and upon the weather conditions of the surrounding lands. Under its unceasing downward urge the vast mass of unfathomable ice burdening that strange continent is continually though slowly pushed down its slopes and outward over its shores, where the ice breaks off in innumerable icebergs, whose glittering fleets sail not the "uncharted" but, unfortunately, the charted and ship-frequented seas.

Irresistible Force.

The same irresistible force brings down the cold, dense air, not at a snail's pace like that of the ice, which has to contend with enormous frictional resistance, but with terrific velocity. The air which comes from the highest points of the interior of Greenland is believed to make a vertical drop of about [illegible] miles. But the horizontal component is represented by a distance of hundreds of miles over the slopes of the mighty white roof.

Professor Hobbs' theory of the connection of the Greenland winds with European storms is to be practically tested by studies of the atmospheric and other conditions in Greenland by a party from Michigan University which will go out next Spring, expecting to spend two years in its work, while at least one of its members is to pass an entire Winter on the lofty ice-cap, where no man is known ever to have been at that time of the year. The ubiquitous radio will keep him in touch with the living world, and may the spirit of science keep him warm.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "PITY THE POOR BEGGAR"

SOME MEN BEG
A GIRL for a
KISS.
How FOOLISH!
THEY only prove again
THAT BEGGARS CAN'T BE CHOOSERS.
Because IF a man
CHOOSES he CAN kiss ANY
Girl and she can't STOP HIM
Till AFTER he has DONE IT, and THEN
It is TOO LATE.
Of course THESE men
TAKE A CHANCE
Of MAKING A GIRL
ANGRY, but a
Man who NEVER TAKES
A chance, often makes
A girl WILD, so
WHAT'S THE ODDS?
WHEN A MAN
OUTRAGES a girl's
Feelings, she EITHER
LOVES HIM for it,
Or HATES him.
But the man who Does NOTHING but BEG gets PITIED or
SCORNED. The man who
STEALS a kiss may not
Be RIGHT, but the one
That BEGS is invariably LEFT.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

NORA says she wishes she were dead.

What's the use of living if she can't see George any more.

George, too, is perfectly willing to pass up his remaining fifty or sixty years since Nora has been removed from his programme.

From which you may gather that things look pretty black for George and Nora.

But their respective families say: "Never mind! They'll get over it. They feel awful now, but they'd have felt a lot worse if we had let them get married."

Are you to conclude from this that there's something radically wrong with eighteen-year-old Nora and twenty-four-year-old George? Not at all. They are both handsome, good natured, industrious clean, honest, young people. But—

Nora's last name is Callahan—

And George's name is Cohn.

So now you understand.

Rarely Think of It.

"But I don't see why religion matters," wails Nora. "As long as we love each other and are willing to work hard for each other and not pick fights, I don't see why we haven't as good a chance to get along as any one."

"Neither do I," growls George. "You'd think from the row that the old folks are kicking up that we helped build the original synagogue. But, honest, we don't think of religion from one end of the year to the other. But the very minute I mentioned marrying Nora, you oughtta heard them yell. Marry a Gentile—and a Catholic at that—! My mother went to bed and stayed there for a week. Then they called in all the relations—"

So the upshot is that Nora and George aren't seeing each other and they both "wish they were dead."

It seems strange that America in the Twentieth Century should be facing such a problem, but that's exactly what's happening in thousands of homes in this country. Never before have racial and religious prejudices operated with more bitterness. Is there justification for this bitterness? Can't Jew mate with Gentile with a reasonable hope of happiness?

Protest in Book.

Sydney Herschel Small says they can. And Sydney Herschel Small ought to know, for he has faced this same problem with his own intelligent, sensitive spirit and staunch Hebrew blood. Yet he protests that "nothing counts in marriage except the folks themselves."

He has put his protest in the form of a book called "Both One." It is the story of an honest, beautiful love which triumphed over what might have been cruel difficulty. But in the face of that love the difficulties melted like unhappy dreams. And you leave it convinced that the problems caused by prejudice and intolerance always would melt if faced by such love.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

IT isn't the initial lie he tells a woman, that costs a man so much effort, it's the upkeep.

Helen Rowland

When a girl, who has never been kissed, kisses a man who has never kissed a woman, it will be time for the dynosaurus to come back to life and walk right out of the Museum of Natural History.

* * *

When a girl marries, she considers that she has a corner on all a man's affections; afterwards, she sometimes begins to wonder which corner.

* * *

A skidding husband may go 'round and 'round in circles—but he always manages to land somewhere near HOME, when he finally straightens up.

* * *

No matter how many clocks a woman may surround a man with, he will still sleep with his watch under his pillow—and no matter how many nests of ash-trays she may give him for Christmas, he will still find a bright spot on the rug that seems a more soul-satisfying ash-receiver.

* * *

A blonde hair or a strange perfume on his coat-lapel may be an accident or only his sister's—but a woman knows that her sway is over when a man closes his eyes when he kisses her.

* * *

There never was a time when a dollar would go as far as the average man expects a woman to make it go!

* * *

There are "born bachelors" and "born poets"—and trying to turn a "born bachelor" into a good husband is just about as expensive and unconvincing as trying to turn a brunette into a blonde.

* * *

It is a very formal party, these days, where nobody kisses anybody's else's wife.

OUR ATTITUDE ON BIG BUSINESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IVY LEE, publicity agent, says that the past year has given unmistakable evidence that the feeling of hostility toward big business, inherited from the nineteenth century, is rapidly dying out in the American people.

In other words, the people now are not condemning big business, but are first asking the question, "Guilty or innocent?" and do not act until proof is received.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Cement and Maple Flooring cases was that ordinary trade association activities are not in themselves unlawful restraints of trade and that they consist merely in the collection and dissemination of information about business and are therefore not unlawful.

The Secretary of Agriculture also dismissed the complaint against the Armour-Morris merger in September because neither the purpose nor the effect of the purchase was price-fixing or unreasonable restraint of trade.

There are signs everywhere that business is no longer considered guilty until it proves itself innocent.

The wave of socialism that formerly raged in our farming communities has abated. Business is winning the people's confidence, and until that confidence is abused business will retain it. The Armour plants at Huron and Fargo in North Dakota were formerly co-operative associations, but they failed. Armour has now bought them and smoke is once again appearing in the factory chimneys.

This revival of the packing industry marks the opening of a new era for the Dakotas. The occasion was celebrated with brass bands, speeches and parades.

Six years ago North Dakota was in the midst of an ambitious socialist campaign to drive big business out of the State. It now welcomes the packers back with appropriate ceremonies.

The Evening Huronite said: "Today marks an epoch in the history of South Dakota as well as of Huron. The State needs manufacturing industries as well as agriculture to balance its economics. Co-operation on the part of the people of South Dakota with these industries will insure their continuance here, their expansion, their prosperity, and the coming of new and larger business enterprises."

It looks as though the tide is definitely turning away from socialism toward common sense in business.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

AN Illinois woman has just remarried her present husband for the fifth time. She believes in keeping her weddings in the family.

WHY wed a stranger when you can get married to a man you know?

WHAT worries her is that she's been married five times and only divorced four.

SHE doesn't like the idea of the minister being one lap ahead of the judge.

AND she can't tell her present husband that her first one was better.

SHE'S had five mates and he's been all of them.

THEY get divorced every time their lawyer needs two hundred dollars.

THEY go to court in the morning and then back to church in the afternoon.

THEY know the wedding ceremony so well that the minister doesn't even have to be there.

THE wife probably divorces him so that she can get another honeymoon.
